Many people would welcome casino in downtown Buffalo

Why is it that few goody-two-shoes must be persistent in trying to halt the development of the Seneca Nation casino in downtown Buffalo? I would guess that Mary Bartley, co-chairwoman of Citizens Against casino Gambling in Erie County, and these others are a minority of people. Just because they don't like to gamble shouldn't mean the rest of us in this area have to suffer. As I have said in the past, there is no reason whatsoever for me to go to the downtown area now. But if the casino opens, then I would have the pleasure of only driving a short distance, instead of up to Niagara Falls.

I was recently at the casino in the falls on a Saturday night, and it was packed from wall to wall with people. I would guess that the majority of these people were from Erie County and the suburbs, like myself. Makes you wonder how many of those people, like myself, would be at a casino in Buffalo.
