Nothing ever changes in the sue-happy city

Someone has finally hit the nail on the head when addressing why projects never get off the ground in Buffalo. There may be a new person at the helm, but we have the same old staff doing things the same old way. These people have a total lack of leadership and vision, and have not one iota on how to bring a plan to reality.

Someone comes along and wants to invest $125 million of private money, creating jobs in a neighborhood that desperately needs them, and what do people do? File a lawsuit. Of course, these people who want to sue the Senecas have no alternative plan and in all probability live in the suburbs.

Will the city screw up the Bass Pro deal? Yes, it will. Buffalo's waterfront, the Buffalo Zoo, the list goes on. I rest my case. Why would anyone want to do business in a city that has a history of failure, dealing with the lawsuits that will be filed and incompetence in its highest form? I have one solution. Turn the city over to the Senecas and get rid of everyone in City Hall.
